FINANCE MEMO / OCTOBER 5, 2026

What to focus on next.

To: Executive team

From: Finance planning team

Subject: Q3 close and October operating priorities

1. Protect collections

We closed September with $230,000 in receivables. Of that amount, $90,000 is overdue, including $30,000 older than 30 days. Review aging weekly and contact overdue accounts before offering additional payment extensions.

2. Keep the October budget distinct from the forecast

The October management budget is $520,000 in revenue. A simple linear trend from the three Q3 observations produces $543,333.33. Use that trend as a comparison point, not a commitment. Validate renewals, churn, and delivery timing before making spending decisions.

3. Treat pipeline as bookings

The six fictional October opportunities total $570,000 in contract value and $273,000 after weighting by assumed probabilities. These values do not equal revenue recognized or cash received in October.

4. Track operating costs against the plan

The October plan allows $200,000 in operating expenses, compared with $186,000 in September. Review any proposed increase against expected delivery capacity and cash collection timing.

> Next review
> Prepare a weekly view of cash collected, overdue invoices, expected contract closes, and actual revenue against the October plan. Reforecast after another month of data becomes available.

> Synthetic document. This memo, its company, and its recommendations are fictional scenarios for testing an AI document interface. It contains no real internal company information.